Chapter 1 by ArcaneDraconus

The Twins slowly came closer.

I was scared out of my mind, The Twins are definitely worse than that arch wyvern... WAY WORSE!

Maybe if i cut the string then....

Suddenly I was on the ground burning. I tried to go into the water but it was no use. The red eye came in for the kill, but I was ready

Chapter 2 by Shadestorm

Darting into my crafting room, I dump True Night's Edge and True Excalibur onto the mythril anvil, and throw a Broken Hero Blade on top of that. Within seconds, the Terra Blade is made. but... The Twins are already moving through my house killing even more Npcs... I need to stop them. But what do I do? After all, I'm still on fire...

I then proceeded to get disembowelled by Spazmatism.

I respawned, and saw the lying corpse of the Dryad

I knew what I had to do (͡° ͜ʖ ͡°)

Chapter 4 by Nicholas Leroy

As I ran back to the battle with my new sword, I didn't realize a zombie was walking behind me. Because of my werewolf senses from my moon charm, I heard it and I turned and stabbed it straight through the eye. Just then, I heard something bad. A giant tortoise flew from the sky and knocked me out. I couldn't wake up fast enough to stop The Twins from shooting me.

Chapter 5 by Shadestorm

aaaaand They would have shot me to death... Say that... say that...
(I actually have no idea how to save this guy)
Ok. I wake up with my health plummeting. I grab The Imaginary Terra Blade and run away from my base, away from what NPCs are left, away from everything I built. What I run to? The mines. My mines. I know every block in them.
Oh, yeah! I'm also dodging the projectiles the twins are shooting. I run into the forest. The twins may be able to go through trees, but at least they can't see me as well. I dive into the hole I created. Continuing to descend deeper into the mines, I am glad that I lit this all up. No monsters are spawning. And so far, it seems that The Twins can't find me yet. I dart down the tunnel that leads back to my base. I run until lasers start swishing down the hall after me. Then I dive down one of the twisty side tunnels. The ones that are designed to get monsters lost. I run around corners, dive into pits, and climb up ladders. I still have a host of lasers following and swishing past me. I check my health.
"Darn it!" 24 left. A laser hits my back.
16. I jump through a hole to the surface, right into the other Twin.
12. I run to another hole in the ground and fall down a short mineshaft. Ow.
8. This is a naturally spawning structure. *#&@. A zombie screams bloody murder.

I crawl out of the murky water, gasping or air. The piranhas try to continue nibbling at my toes, as I turn and face the beast I must deal with.

I quickly drink the lesser healing potion I had found earlier from an abandoned shaft. I took out my sword, prepared to fight, and to win.

The twins stood before me, each in their final form. I knew I couldn't last much longer, but I could at least try. I backed up even more so that I had led the twins far away from my NPCs, at least they would be safe. I was preparing to swing at the monstrous beast in front of me when I was hit by a wave of anxiety. I turned the other direction, and I ran as far as I could. This allowed some of my life to heal as I entered into the corrupt area of my world. And just as fast as my life healed, it soon depleted as I fell deep into a chasm. The impact of my fall caused a shadow orb to break... The third one I had ever broken..

Just as I thought this night couldn't get any worse,

I heard the evil cry of the eater of worlds in the distance.
